INVESTIGATION SUMMARY CONTINUATION, CR# 274783

Upon being assigned this investigation, R/Sgt contacted the complainant and witnesses for interviews. Each of the parties related the same account given to Sgt Kenneth Johnson #1743 on the date of the incident.

Each related to the extent of their knowledge that [REDACTED] were stopped and searched by the accused officers. Words were exchanged between [REDACTED] and the accused officers. The accused officers exited their vehicle and pursued [REDACTED] into house, with their weapons in hand (Cunningham - gun and ASP, Johnson - gun and chemical spray). After searching the house, and not finding [REDACTED] PO Edward Johnson allegedly discharged chemical spray in one of the bedrooms. (Att 4 thru 8)

Next, R/Sgt contacted the Illinois State Forensics Lab/Trace Chemistry and spoke to [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] related to R/Sgt the procedure for testing chemical spray. This procedure could not conclusively prove that the accused had discharged his spray in this incident. For this reason, R/Sgt did not request that testing be done. (Att 9 and 10)

Using the information learned from the Initiation Report, and the interviews with the complainant parties, R/Sgt identified each accused officer's alleged role in the incident. They were served with the appropriate Notification of Charges/Allegations, Administrative Proceedings Rights, and Waiver/Request to Secure Counsel forms, and directed to submit reports in answer to the allegations. (Att 11 thru 14 and 16 thru 18)

In his report, PO Aaron Cunningham relates that he observed [REDACTED] creating a loud disturbance at the location of the incident. PO Cunningham and his partner approached the individual, who "refused to display hands for officer safety" or show officers identification. The officer relates that he and his partner subsequently returned to their vehicle, at which time [REDACTED] yelled "Fuck you Motherfuckers!" and kicked a bottle in the direction of the officer's vehicle. The officer states that he and his partner exited their vehicle in order to calm [REDACTED]. They approached [REDACTED] and directed him to stop, at which time [REDACTED] fled into the residence. The officer admits that he and his partner entered and searched the residence, but claims that they did so out of concern for possible occupants. He claims that there were no occupants at the time. PO Cunningham denies having his weapon unholstered upon entering the residence. As for the allegation regarding the possession of a ASP-style baton, PO Cunningham admits being in possession of the weapon.

In his report, PO Edward Johnson relates very much the same account as his partner although shorter in form. PO Edward Johnson denies the allegations regarding having his weapon unholstered, as well as the allegation regarding discharging his chemical spray.

Regarding the allegation that the accused officers entered the complainant's residence without a warrant or permission, R/Sgt finds that this allegation is proved by the investigation. Although the officers appear to have had the best of intentions, they have not adequately met the standards for a warrantless entry. [REDACTED] actions, as related by the officers, do not constitute a criminal act that is "grave" in nature. As for the officers' belief that any occupants of the house might be in danger, it is apparent from their summaries of the incident that [REDACTED] allegedly dangerous actions were directed solely at the officers.

Regarding the allegation that PO Cunningham was in possession of an ASP-style baton in violation of Department Directives, R/Sgt finds that this allegation has been proven.

Regarding the allegation that PO Johnson discharged his chemical spray within the complainant's residence, and the allegation that the officers entered the residence with their weapons unholstered, R/Sgt finds that these allegations cannot be proved or disproved by the investigation.
